This Great Republic, if united. England and France sees 3 very danout numerous acts unfriendly to this country on the part of these two powers. They will be as prudent as circumstances will permit, and seek their end with as little cost to themselves as possible. Sumner is an old blockhead, batbling about slavery. England and France don't care a shilling's worth about that subject. In fact, this revolution in this country has got beyond that subject. The South would, to-day, sacrifice all the negroes in the world to gain her point, and the North don't care if all the negroes are destroyed, so she gains her point. Revolutions are not gontinued for the same reasons that they were begun. Our fathers sought first the repeal of some obnoxious laws, or a change of the policy of Government, but they ended in claiming independence; and yet our revolution was remarkable for its consistency above all others, because pursued by men remarkable for wisdom and consistency of purpose. Few other sevolutions have been begun and ended by the same men, or as their authors expected. This revolution is likely to be one of the unmanageable affairs, which will be ended by manifest three field pieces, six caissons, three limbers, d'stiny, and not by any human forecas'. When three rifled siege pieces, without carriages, we have all Europe involved in this fight, what will come out of it? Crowned heads had better not encourage rebellions. France tried that once before and upset the throne, and incurred incalcuable cost of treasure and blood. This ought to make crowned heads cautious, But anything is better, they will conclude than to let this Great Ocean-bound Republic right up again and be her former self with all her future progress and power.

But these qualitearing their own house to pieces, not foreseeing that strangers with strange institutions may walk in and take possession.

The Richmond Sentinel has a very amusing article on the despotism of Lincoln, and the entire loss of liberty suffered by the North. The Sentinel is sadly mistaken. One party North are the freest people on earth. They are free not only to say what they please, but do what they please. They don't see what anybody wants with any more liberty. In their opinion everybody is free, except their opponents, and they don't deserve to be free. That is the doctrine, and the editor of the Sentinel ought to know it. He is free-free to write what he pleases and do what he an important point in this war, but it has so plases; but there are people in his Govern- far been that which ever side held it they had ment who are not free. Both these parties are very free-free themselves, and free to punish those who differ with them. We have seen a great many of these Union men South, who ran away for their lives. They could not stand the sort of freedom the editor of the Sentinel and his party had there. The Republicans North are too free for Democrats, just as these Secessionists South are too free for Union men there. No doubt the Sentinel is opposed to mob law, if it is got up against Secession; but that mob that destroyed the Raleigh Standard was not so bad after all. That paper was publishing accounts of peace meetings in North Carolina. It got what it deserved-didn't it, Mr. Sentinel?

The people of East Tennessee had to leave their homes, because they loved the Union. They are the party that didn't deserve to be free down there. Up this way, Vallandigham and others were banished because they were of those who didn't deserve to be free. We don't know how it would be in peace; but judging what these parties do in war, we suspect that they would preserve the same sort of freedom they both relish so much nowfreedom to do as they please, and to compel other people to talk and act as they do. Such babbling only makes the Sentinel ridiculous. England have gone down as low as torty per We understand the sort of freedom that pre- cent, discount.

seen them silence all discussion, and persecute to death all that do not agree with them. After all, Mr. Sentinel, military necessity is bad enough up this way; but it is freedom compared with what prevails in Dixie. This military necessity is greater with them than with us, and more exacting. If we had the power to-day, we should challenge the Sentinel to allow full freedom of discussion in Dixie for one year-no military interference or mob law-and we would risk the verdict of the Southern people themselves. Let's have vance of the time; and again with a second notice freedom in Dixie once. Its sudden repression made this rebellion. Take it off one year and

[From the Richmond Sentinel, Sept. 4.7 Following out its natural career, the Adninistration of Lincoln has already become, at the North, a despotism more foul and more grinding even than that which we forsaw he would establish over us, had we acquiesced n his election. For two years and more the Northern Democracy have been the veriest slaves under the heel of the Republicans. Plundered, insulted, spurned and cast into dungeons, exiled, dragged forth to fight, not for a cause, but to serve a loathsome faction and a vulgar tyrant, shot down like dogs for and a valigar tyrant, shot down like dogs for resistance, they would, indeed, be the veriest worms, if thoughts of resistance and revenge had not entered their souls and become to them a fixed and living purpose. Taught to look upon the power of the Federal Government 23 a thing so formidable that it were better almost to defy Omnipotence they have shrupk long from a conflict tence, they have shrunk long from a conflict with it. The idol of the savage may be a harmless block of wcod or stone, but it is his idol; and so it was with these poor heathen, who had never truly learned to worship jus tice and liberty, instead of the Union which had been devised merely as a means to secure these great ends. Groping in this darkness, they could hardly real ze the fact that the South was wrestling successfully with the power of the Union, before which they daily bowed and trembled. They thought it was but a temporary delay, the end certain, and that very soon, the invincible Federal Government would again claim sway over our fair land, and our nearly my the day they had fair land, and our people rue the day they had dared to brook its power. But two years and more of successful war by the South has at last taught the Northera Democracy that their past caution and timidity was unnecessary, and that a manly stand at the beginning would have saved them all their shame and suffering, and averted the slavery they are now forced to endure. If eight mil-lion of whites can defy the Government of Lincoln, with twenty millions at his back, with command of the sea, immense military resources, why might not they assert the manhood they claim to possess, and strike one bold blow for liberty? Are they to wait one bold blow for fiberty? Are they to wait forever, and endure every extremity of oppression and indignity, while the South spurns the same yoke which they have accepted? Such are the thoughts which have been gathering strength and volume at the North. The nasses are beginning to tire of Mr. Lincoln's despotism, of his war, his taxes, and his con-scription. They feel that their real enemies are the Republicaus, and that they must put them down sooner or later. Just now the are pausing ere they strike the meditated blow; but when it is struck they will marvel at the ease with which the work has been ac-complished. What it wants now most of all is, not a riper state of public opinion, or a more fervent, concentrated hatred of their oppressors, but an intrepid leader. And that this leader will soon be found who can doubt that knows ought of history? The North has a struggle to go through before she can prosper and be free—a struggle not with us, but with the elements of faction and crime in her own bosom. The cancer is there, and it must be cut out—the sooner the better. A war with the South does not mend the matter. It is not true that to stop the war with us is ruin to the North. We know not conservative Government, the course of the North is a plain one. The war with the South must be stopped, and that as speedily as pos-sible. But this is only half the work. It is all

This advice costs nothing, but we feel disposed to pay it back in kind with a much better article. We agree that Abolitionists are no more fit to govern a country than the Sccessionists; but still we are of opinion that there are men of sense enough North and South to restore the old Government, which is far better than any half of it. And now we advise the Southern people not to hang, kill or destroy their leaders at Richmond and elsewhere; but hurl them from power, raise the old flag and send their members of Congress back to Washington. There we can dispense honorably and quietly with the Abolitionists Ramsey has called out 50 Chippewas on his and let them retire along with Secessionists ting up a revolution, that reminds us of the advice of the fex that had lost his tail.

THE SHELLING OF CHARLESTON. The editor of the Savannah News, who wa

in Charleston the night Gillmore commenced shelling the city, thus describes the affair : The citizens, as it seems by an error in the transmission of Gillimore's answer by the signal corps, were led to believe that they would have until Monday aight to remove their fam-ilies, and were surprised by a second midnight attack. The scene, as the Yankee incendiary shells came hurling through the air, crushing she came nurning through the air, crushing the chambers of sleeping women and children, or bursting in the streets, scattering their fragments in every direction, and lighting up the darkness with a sudden glare, was shocking in the extreme. Shell after shell followed at intervals of some ten minutes, each preceded by the sullen roar of the far off battery. eded by the sullen roar of the far off battery. Soon the streets in the vicinity where the struck were filled with men, women and children, the former as firemen or soldiers repairing to their alarm posts of duty, the latter hastening—they knew not where—somewhere for safety. While the streets were thus filled with terrified families the rain poured down adding to the horrors of the scene. The shelling continued for about an hour and a quarter, when it ceased, At 2 o'clock, when we retired to our chamber in the Mills House, Meeting street, it was comparatively quiet. From the door of our hotel every shell could be distinctly heard and the point at which it struck tinctly heard, and the point at which it struck pretty nearly determined. We heard of sev-eral houses and one church in different parts of the city which were more or less damaged by the shells; but no instance of injury to persons was reported when we left the city yesterday morning. We heard of one very narrow escape, a shell having passed through a chamber in which two young girls were sleeping. The bed was struck and a part of the musketo-bar torn away, but, providentially, neither of the sleepers was hurt.

PLANS OF THE REBELS.

he said the Confederacy had undertaken more than it was able to accomplish, and yet, strange as it may appear, the policy of the war was still unchanged. Our armies remained scattered. They were not massed. They have never relinquished any point of defense except as they were driven from it by the enemy's payonets or starvation. We have undertaken to defend every approach to our vast domain. Our forces have been scattered along our whole frontier, and as a matter of course, weak points were to be found by the wily foe. He could mass his forces and overwhelm the Confederates at any given point. Thus have we fought and suffered, thus have we paid dearly for the experience we have gained, and thus it is that so many battles have been lost, and so many roads opened to the invaders. It is not yet too late, how-ever, to abandon a policy which actual trial has proved to be erroneous. We can yet mass our armies, and draw wisdom from the example of Washington, whose tactics worked out the great problem of the first revolution. When too weak to fight we can retreat, and by having all our forces in two grand corps, our skillful Generals can so maneuver them as to thwart a foe vastly superior. The day of defeat will have passed away when our vet-eran armies are hurled in solid phalanx upon

Wheat's Philosophy of Slavery.

Messrs. Editors: From your notice of Wheat's Philosophy of Slavery" the reader learns that the author establishes, by "scriptural authority," that there was but one "Auman family" from which the white race has descended. This, we presume, no one will controvert, for Paul says God created, of one blood, all the nations of the earth. But you say your author derives the colored races from the "living creatures," and hence they are developments. Our purpose is not to controvert this discovery of the author (discovered second-handed, we presume, for it sounds a good deal like the philosophy of the "Ves-t ges of Creation"), but we are perplexed with white blood is necessary, in amalgamate with the negro, to make a human being? Habits of Lobsters.

Many of our readers have a fondness for lobster flesh, who may know little about the habits of this prince of shell-fish. As a kied of dessert after a hearty meal on this luxury of the table, we commend to their attention the following sketch by Mr. G. P. Disceway: Who does not like the flesh of the lobster? Even the child knows the nursery riddle— "Black in the kitchen red on the table." Without any warmth in their bodies, or even without red blood circulating through their veins, they are wonderfully voracious. They even devour each other, and may be said to eat themselves; for changing their shell and stomach each year, these remains are generally the first morsel to girt their new system. They are always in harness, heavily armed to the teeth; seven jointed in the cunningly forged mail of their back. Beneath this proour men charged through the town with most plendid gallantry, capturing 104 prisoners and three guns, one twelve and one six-bounder. Here the latter were posted on a commanding eminence just beyond the town of Culpepper, and were charged upon by Gen.

The two great claws are the lobster's instruments of provision and defense, and by copening like a pair of seisang they have custor, of Kilpatrick's division, and taken, opening, like a pair of seissors, they have with nearly all their men.

Buford's division passed on in pursuit of the two claws lies the animal's head, very small, with eyes like two black, horny specks,

Then the body swells in an unusual manner, and the shell begins to divide—it seems turned inside out, the stomach coming away with the shell. In like manner the claws are disengaged, the lobster casting them off much as you would kick off a boot too big for us. . For eral hours it now continues enfeel motionless, but in two days the new shell beomes hardened; and within forty-eight hours

The lobster has now increased more than a the new. Below, in his native elements, he reaches the age of twice ten years, and loses a foot or a claw without feeling his loss, for he very well knows that they will grow again. At certain seasons lobsters never meet each other without a fight, and when a leg or even the vanquished retires for a thorough repair of his injured anatomy. This is quickly ac-complished, for in three weeks the new limb s nearly as large and powerful as the old one. When hunting, the lobster resorts to strat-gem, if his strength be insufficient. In vain the oyster closes the door against his grasping, vice-ike claw, for so soon as the unsuspecting muscle opens its house, in he pops a stone, and the breach made, the oyster must arrender. The lobster has his rocky hole at a depth of from six to twelve fathoms, and the propa-gation of his race is continued on in marvelous numbers. More than twelve thousand eggs have been counted in a single female. When he reaches the light he is inactive, but in his own realm he dashes with rapid speed over chasms and rocky table lands of the ocean. A motion of the tail is sufficient to ourl him down more than fifty feet deep, and thus escape the swiftest pursuit. So sure is this leap, that he never misses the entrance of his cavern, even in the most precipitous flight, although, too, it merely offers space enough to admit his body.

ANECDOTE OF WELLINGTON-A VALIANT BUTTONMAKER AT WATERLOO .- A little work entitled "Good Things for Railway Readers," ust published in London, contains, among a thousand other anecdotes, the following in reference to the Duke of Wellington:

Carew, the sculptor, told Haydon the follow-Carew, the sculptor, told mayou the following story of the Duke of Wellington: The Duke was at the Marchioness of Downshire's, and the ladies plagued him for some of his stories. For some time he declared all his stories were in print. At last he said, "Well, I'll tell you one that has not been printed." In the middle of the battle of Waterloo I'll tell you one that has not been printed."
In the middle of the battle of Waterloo
he saw a man in plain clothes riding about on a cob in the thickest fire.
During a temporary lull the Duke beckoued him, and he rode over. He asked him who he was and what business he had there.
He replied he was an Englishman, accidentally at Brussels; that he had never seen a fight, and wanted to see one. The Duke told him he was in imminent danger of his life; he said, "Not more than your Grace," and they parted. But every now and then the Duke said, "Not more than your craes, and they parted. But every now and then the Duke saw the cob-man riding about in the smoke, and at last having nobody to send to a regiment, he again beckened to this little fellow and told him to go up to that regiment and order them to charge—giving him some mark of authority the Colonel would recognize. Away he gallopped, and in The rebel works are very strong.

The casualties to the expedition are one man killed. Rosecrans arrived at Chattanooga on the 10th, the next day after its occupation.

The Duke asked him for his card, and found the control of the card, and found the card of the card. in the evening, when the card fen out of his sash, that he hyed at Birminghim and was a button-maker! When at Birmingham the Duke inquired of the firm, and found he was their traveler, and then in Ireland. When he returned, at the Duke's request, he called on him in London. The Duke was happy to see him, and said he had a vacancy in the mint at eight hundred pounds a year, where a count-ans were wanted. The little cob-man said it would be exactly the thing, and the Duke in-stalled him—much to his Grace's honor.

Freedom is the growing inspiration of our armies and the just inscription of our banners. By this sign conquer. PROSPECTUS.

THE UNDERSIGNED PROPOSE TO PUBLISH IN Louisville, Ky., weekly, a Religious Family Newspaper, to be styled as above.

The present and prospective condition of the Presby, terian Church renders the existence of such a paper in the locality an indispensable necessity. Indeed, there has never been a time in all our past history as a Church, when a truly conservative Family Newspaper was so imperatively domained and we have evidence to believe that a desire for such a paper is becoming very general, and growing stronger in the hearts of our good people. We have reached a crisis when the Church feels that she can dispense with it no longer. We feel, too, that the time has come when the providence of God emands of us that we should make the effort.

The undersigned, under a deep sense of their obligations to God and his Church, have determined to begin this good work. But we are well aware that there are great and serious difficulties in our way—such as will involve risk, Isbor and sacridice, with no other hope of reward, at present, than the felt consciousness of doing good. We do, therefore, most carnessly and confidently appeal to our brethern for help. We do not believe they will stand by and allow us to go into the struggle alone. Give us your carnest co-operation—not for our sake, but for yourselves, your churches, and families. Let every pastor, and elder, and member of the bscribers. It is our purpose to furnish to the Church a religious wasaper of a high order, mainly devoted to the inter to of Christ's Kingdom, and the doctrines and polity the Church. In matters involving discussion, we hope to be firm ad decided, but always candid, courtesus and conservive. We shall kry to enforce upon the consciences of or oders the duties arising out of the various relations. We shall key to enforce upon the consecutors of we readers the duties arising out of the various relations of life, such as are recognized by the word of God. A brief summary of General Intelligence, with matters of interest touching Agriculture, Science, illerature and Education, will be inserted in each number. Special arrangements have been made to obtain for the Children's Department something that will instruct and please them.

The first number will be issued as soon as we obtain the means—possibly by the first of October. Falling to publish, all moners sent us will be promptly returned.

A large hospital is in course of construction in Jeffersonville, Indiana, which will proba-bly by ready for the reception of patients in a onth or six weeks. As soon as this building is completed it will afford me pleasure to com-ply with your request to vacate the schoollouses. I regret very much to hear that the trustees of one of the churches in this city have re-fused to permit their session room to be temporarily occupied for school purposes. For their information, I will state that at the time the hospitals were opened in this city the pro-priety of taking the churches for that purpose was discussed, and that by taking the school-houses the churches were relieved. But for these school-houses the churches would, at this time, be occupied as hospitals. I am, gentlemen, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

The chair remarked that it would be well to have the co-operation of the Northern manufacturers, as he was aware of the interest they had in such a movement. had in such a movement.

The following resolution, offered by Mr. J.

B. Lewis, was read and adopted:

Resolved, That we call a convention of the manufacturers of tobacco, to meet in this city on the 16th day of September, to consider the propriety of taking some step toward estab-lishing a uniform standard for the inspection of weights of manufactured tobacco. On motion of Mr. J. B. Lewis the chair was authorized to appoint a committee of four to correspond with various manufacturers elsewhere on the subject, and also to wait upon Collector Speed and report to him the pro-ceedings of this meeting to enable him to lay the subject in its proper light before the Collectors elsewhere.

The chair appointed Messrs. Spaulding, Wicks, Robinson and Lewis on said com-

The hull on deck 250 feet in length, 230 feet straight keel, 35 feet floor, 38 feet beam, and 7 feet d inches hold. She will have four boilers, 40 inches in diameter and 26 feet long. She will have two engines, 23% inch cylinders, 8 feet 4 inches stroke, and 30 feet wheels with 12% feet buckets.

The steamer is to be commanded by Capt. Ab. Shaw. She will berth one hundred persons in rooms. The cabla will be very fine, and the outfit unsuroassed in the country. No expense is being spared to make her surpass in passenger arrangements and other matters all other steamers ever constructed for the Mississippi and tributaries. The M. S. Mepham will draw only 30 inches light, and will be a marvel in speed. She will carry a load of 1,200 tuns. The hull timber is the best that could be procured for money. It is very probable that the famous caterer and writer, Mr. James Abbey, will be offered the stewardship of the new steamer, the advent of which will be looked for with interest.
